

Meanwhile at SEXYLAND

A series dedicated to establishments we like to visit

Ready to get raunchy in Amsterdam North-side's newest baby? We present to you: Sociëteit SEXYLAND. SEXYLAND will be open for the next 365 days, with a different organizer running the shack every single day. The best part? You can too. One day it could be a spot for your lil' brother and sister to do their homework, the next it could be a swingers club for your parents' naughty fantasies. We went by to chat with initiator Aukje Dekker, from the Eddie the Eagle Museum collective. Our impression? One word: sensational.

The ongoing changes at NDSM have turned what was a playground of stones and sand to a strip mall for big corporations. Until now. Thanks to Kim Tuin, the new director of NDSM, SEXYLAND exists as an anti-change, For Us, By Us establishment (not to be confused with the brand FUBU tho). Long story short, SEXYLAND is nothing like any of Amsterdam's typical clubs.

A series dedicated to establishments we like to visit

Walking up to SEXYLAND for our Saturday afternoon meeting, three tourists noticed the big and colourful sign: 'Is this a stripclub?', they ask. The thing is: that day it wasn't, but it could be, if you want it to be. That night, Rotjoch (101Barz) was playing host, a week before that local hero Bonne Reijn presented two of his favorite bands. Then there was this guy giving tennis lessons and there'll be a night dedicated to saving coral by Greenpeace. You get the idea – everything's possible here.

So how is SEXYLAND going to build a legacy on the ever-changing NDSM in 365 days? With your help. And yours. And yeah, yours too love! Everyone that hosts a night there, and everyone who shows up, participates in the legacy of SEXYLAND. We will too, FYI: don't miss out on our Spring Magazine release party at SEXYLAND on 3 March. We'll make sure it's one of the most unforgettable nights of the 365 <3.
